The image shows three young children, two boys and one girl, standing in front of a school building. They are all wearing blue school uniforms. The boy on the left is wearing a blue short-sleeved shirt and shorts, and blue sneakers. The girl in the middle is wearing a blue long-sleeved shirt and a blue skirt over white leggings with a tear, and black shoes. The boy on the right is wearing a blue long-sleeved shirt and blue shorts, and white sneakers. The school building behind them has various educational murals, including numbers (1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8), geometric shapes (circle, triangle, square), and illustrations of children playing. The entire image has a blue tint, and there is a yellow and blue splatter graphic in the bottom right corner.

CS4ME 2022 Statement for World Malaria Day 2022

The Civil Society for Malaria Elimination (CS4ME) call on decision makers and leaders to: Advance equity and prioritise local civil society in the implementation of malaria interventions through the following actions:

- Move from a purely medical approach to malaria control to a multi-sectoral approach with a community focus that takes into account important factors such as the socio-economic, cultural and gender related norms, contexts, and realities of people in communities affected by malaria
- Identify in-country vulnerable populations and develop and involve civil society in specific interventions for these populations (refugees, internally displaced people, orphans, people living in conflict zones, people living in rural areas, pregnant women and children under five etc.)
- Implement differentiated programs to address barriers to accessing to quality malaria services and care faced by the most vulnerable populations
- Address gender inequalities in malaria control programs and policies. Recent evidence suggests that women's ability to access malaria prevention and treatment is frequently limited by their low socio-economic standing within their households and communities³
- Recognize and work with local community expertise and reach needed to achieve malaria objectives
- Meaningfully involve local civil society organizations in implementation to ensure better community engagement and sustainability of malaria control investments
- Ensure fair remuneration for community health workers, many of whom are women who work hard to ensure communities have access to health centers
- Commit funds to against malaria, TB and HIV during the Global Fund 7th replenishment to reach the target of $18 billion
- Increase national health budgets in endemic countries in line with the 15% promise made in the Abuja Declaration 2001 and increase the benefits of local medical staff, hospital and health centers who are front line fighters.

Every minute a child under the age of five dies from malaria.
We have the power to change this let's act now!

About CS4ME : Civil Society for Malaria Elimination is a global platform of civil society organizations committed to achieve malaria elimination. Our mission is to make malaria control programs and interventions more effective, sustainable, equitable, innovative, civil society-inclusive, community-centered, human rights- and gender-based, and adequately funded.

1. As a member of the community, we have a responsibility to fight malaria, because we all have a stake in it. Let's #FightForWhatCounts to achieve a malaria-free world. Let's make sure our family members are protected and sleep under bed nets. #MeetTheTarget #EndMalaria
2. Today, the impact of malaria is more visible than ever: children are absent from school, a child dies of malaria every minute. Civil society is advocating for the strengthening of health systems to effectively fight this disease and save lives. #EndMalaria #FightForWhatCounts #MeetTheTarget #InvestInCommunities
3. Local health staff, community health workers are key actors in the fight against malaria. Dear leaders, it is urgent to increase their benefits by increasing the national budget allocated to health. #MeetTheTarget #FightForWhatCounts
4. It is important to mobilize the necessary funds for malaria at the 7th Global Fund Replenishment Conference to reach the $18 billion target. #MeetTheTarget #FightForWhatCounts
5. African leaders and decision-makers, mobilizing more funds in community health to reach the most vulnerable populations is helping to fight malaria and save lives. #MeetTheTarget #FightForWhatCounts

Funding communities and supporting them is crucial because they are the ones dealing with malaria on a day-to-day basis.

25 April 2022

Interview with Shreehari Acharya, Project Manager at ALIGHT Malaria Free Mekong project, a platform of communities and civil society organization based in Bangkok, Thailand.

1. You dedicate your work to fighting malaria. Why is this fight still important today?

If we go back to 2014, before the Regional Artemisinin-resistance Initiative (RAI) grant started in this region, there was no platform nor opportunities for communities to express their concern and share their best practices. I started coordinating the malaria CSO platform 8 years ago with a small group of people, and now we have more than 50 organizations working together as a platform. Our work is to document evidence of best practices and share our findings with other programmes and countries, and advocate on
